

Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 04 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:

Chilly with mostly clear skies for tonight. Rather cloudy tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:

Staying dry during the evening and overnight. Some cloud at first in the east and arriving across the west later. Otherwise largely clear. A chilly night with light winds allowing for fog patches to develop in prone areas. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Saturday:

Largely dry on Saturday with many areas seeing sunny spells, although cloudier in the west. Showers, locally heavy arriving from the west from late afternoon. Feeling pleasant in the sunshine. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:

Sunny spells and a few showers. Showers most frequent and locally heavy on Monday. Feeling warm, with light winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.